Summary

The pandemic caused by the dissemination of the coronavirus profoundly disrupted our life habits and constitutes a socio-economic challenge such as we did not know after World War II, in the last century. The Law, as a phenomenon of social regulation, was also put to the test, in its conformational and adaptive capacities. This text intends, on the one hand, to launch an overview of the responses of the Member States of the European Union to the constitutional problems posed by the need to manage the pandemic and, on the other hand, to point out aspects that should constitute lessons for the future.
